EDWARD J. CAFRUNY, M.D., Ph.D

This volume of The Journal of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics is dedicated to Ed Cafruny in recognition of his many contributions to the publications of the Society for Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics.

Dr. Cafruny became a member of the Editorial Board of this Journal in 1965, and served in this capacity until 1969, when he was appointed to the Board of Publication Trustees. As Chairman of the Board from 1970 to 1975 he assumed major responsibility for all of the Society's publications. This period was characterized by rapidly rising publication costs, but his effective management and astute contract negotiations made it possible to continue the practice, established in 1970, of providing members with the opportunity to subscribe to Society publications at considerably reduced rates. He was also instrumental in founding, in 1973, the new journal Drug Metabolism and Disposition, which is already established as a major publication in its field.

The Society is pleased to take this opportunity to express its appreciation of Dr. Cafruny's tireless and effective work that contributed so much to the success of its publications.
